

Are Footballers Worth their Pay? How do they Compare with Opera Singers?

A top opera singer would soon get the sack if he or she kept on missing the high notes, like those scorers who so frequently shoot wide.

Or ran about making weird gestures when they managed to hit a high note. Like a striker who's just scored.

Or sang a false note, like a footballer slicing a shot.

Or expected the chorus to run up and hug or even roll around the floor together, after a high note.

Or started to slow down after ninety minutes.

Or, if having slipped on the stage, lie there rolling about and wasting audience time.

And an opera singer doesn't get £6 - 8 million a year. Just to perform once a week for 40 weeks a year.

Or spit on the stage.